MADE GOOD RECORD.

"The Girl in the Taxi" Hit the High Places Only in Barre.

A large audience greeted "The Girl in the Taxi," presented in the opera house Saturday evening, and it melody and laughter count for anything in making for satisfaction, the play was a huge success. The farce teemed with action throughout, and from the introduction to the fall of the curtain, the merriment never ceased. The scene of the piece, although located in New York, retained much of its French flavor. The plot deals with the adventures of Mignon, the coquettish wife of a New Jersey perfume manufacturer, and erstwhile member of the national guard. She has a weakness for New York, and the action of the farce centers chiefly around her escapades in the luring light of the great white way. Lucile Cardiner as "Mignon" did full justice to her part. Ward De Wolf as "Bertie Stewart," who "had never been alone with a strange woman" was easily the star man of the cast. Edward Maynard as "John Stewart," Bertie's father, Richard Earle as "Walter Watson," and Herbert Denton as "Percy Peters" were peculiarly well adapted for the roles they portrayed.
